Social and Personal

Miss Mary Roper, of Petersburg, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Moore at their residence on West Franklin Street. Miss Roper has been in Richmond for the week, and expects to return to her home to-morrow evening.

At the Clubs.

The usual hops will take place at the Country Club of Virginia and the Hermitage Golf Club this afternoon and to-night. At the Country Club numerous tea parties will be held in the afternoon, and informal dancing will follow the dinner in the evening. A great many tables have been reserved for dinner at the club, and a large contingent of fashionable society will fill the gallery at the clubhouse to look on at the dance afterward. Decorations will be in pink and white flowers and rose-shaded lights.

The hop at the Hermitage takes place in the afternoon, and an orchestra will play for the dance. Tea tables are to be decorated in slender vases of roses, and the clubhouse will be thronged with guests all afternoon.

Entertained in Norfolk.

Says the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: Miss Mary Lamb entertained Thursday at a luncheon given at the Borough Club in honor of Miss Calhoun, of Atlanta; Miss Zady Branch, of Richmond; and Miss Eliza Battle Dancy, of Baltimore. The table was decorated with pink roses and maiden-hair ferns and the guests of honor were presented with corsage bouquets of orchids and lilies of the valley. Covers were laid for eight, and Miss Lamb's guests included Miss Branch, Miss Calhoun, Miss Dancy, Mrs. Hammond Johnson, Mrs. William S. Royster, Mrs. William H. White, Jr., and Miss Mattie Lamb.

Preston Cotton was host Thursday evening at a beautiful dinner given at the Country Club in honor of Miss Calhoun, of Atlanta, and Miss Branch, of Richmond. The table was decorated with yellow covers and white flowers.

ASK MORE MONEY FOR JAMES RIVER

Congressman Montague and Richmond Citizens Appear Before House Committee.

LAST SURVEY MADE IN 1884

At Present Rate, Will Take Nearly Forty Years to Complete Work.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Washington, January 16.—Congressman Montague, with R. A. Dunlop, secretary of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce; George Bryan, E. S. Goodman, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce; and J. F. Ryland, to-day appeared before the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors to ask for a more comprehensive plan for developing the James River.

Mr. Dunlop was the first speaker, and he detailed at length what the needs of the James River are at the present time, what the appropriations in the past have been, and how Richmond and interior ports have suffered by reason of the fact that Charleston, Savannah, and other seaport cities have received more liberal treatment at the hands of the government.

Mr. Dunlop also cited the wonderful commercial growth of the city of Richmond in the past, and declared that what she needs at the present time is a more liberal appropriation for the development of the James River from Richmond to the sea, a distance of about 160 miles. He explained in detail just what was wanted; said that the last appropriation of $75,000 was totally inadequate to meet the situation, and made an earnest plea for an increased appropriation at the hands of the River and Harbors Committee.

The present estimates of the War Department call for an appropriation of only $110,000, and this, in the opinion of Mr. Dunlop and others who spoke concerning the matter, should be very largely increased, but the exact amount was left to the discretion of the committee.

It was developed at the hearing that there has not been a survey of the James River since 1884. This fact when brought out caused members of the committee to express astonishment. Chairman Sparkman told the Richmond

MAURICE PALEOLOGUE GETS RUSSIAN POST

Succeeds Delcasse as French Ambassador at St. Petersburg.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY. MAURICE PALEOLOGUE, who succeeds Theophile Delcasse as French ambassador at St. Petersburg, a post which has been the grave of so many French diplomatic reputations, is perhaps the ablest and certainly the most discreet of the permanent officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs on the Quai d'Orsay at Paris.

It was to him that President Poincaré, when Prime Minister, confided the difficult task of completely reorganizing the Department of Foreign Affairs, with a view to simplifying its procedure, and to abolish the almost incredible abuses that had crept in in the course of years; abuses which were brought to light by certain very grave financial scandals.

Paleologue performed his task with great success, and deserves the gratitude of all those who are any business with the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, for having done away with an immense amount of needless red tape. Moreover, he has succeeded in putting the return of the Department of the permanent officials of the department, which had resulted in so many leakages of official secrets, embarrassing alike to the French government and to foreign powers.

"Silence indoors" is a rule of doors, messieurs, and bear in mind that a Ministry of Foreign Affairs it is only published treaties that should not be kept secret. These were the orders which, with the authority of Premier Poincaré, he issued to the department, intimating that any indiscretion would be followed by immediate dismissal.

At no time did Paleologue give so great an evidence of his tact and discretion, as when he represented the Department of Foreign Affairs at the second trial by court-martial, at Rennes, of Major Dreyfus, after the latter's return from Devil's Island. Grave complications with Russia would have ensued had Paleologue made clean breast of all he knew about the matter. And yet he managed his evidence in such a manner as to satisfy the court, which had been so violently aroused by the home and abroad. He won the respect and the confidence of both the opposing parties, and managed to convey the impression that neither he nor his department had anything to conceal, while abstaining from revealing anything of an embarrassing nature.

Unlike most of the permanent officials of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he has had a considerable amount of diplomatic experience, having served as secretary at Tangier and at Rome, and having been sent on special missions to Germany, China, Cairo, Bulgaria and Madrid.

The new ambassador is a bachelor, and, without having ever been tempted to assume any title, bears a name that is historic throughout the East of Europe, especially in Russia, where Muscovite aspirations to the possession of Constantinople are based upon the descent of the reigning house from those Paleologues who reigned in ancient times at Constantinople, as Emperors of Byzantium.

Count Frederic von Koenigsmark, who has arrived from Europe to New York, to spend some time in the United States and Canada, is a Prussian captain of cavalry on the reserve list, forty-three years of age, unmarried, and head of the second of the three lines of the historic house of Koenigsmark, which has played so great a role in the annals of Central Europe and also of Great Britain.

Count Charles Koenigsmark, president of the Reichstag, is a member of the same family.

These have brought to light that shortly before he was appointed minister, he had figured as witness in a scandalous lawsuit at Drohobitz, in Galicia, at the close of which the jury had expressed the opinion that no credence could be given to his testimony; a view which was indorsed by the judges.

It has also come to light that he was originally an athlete in a small circle, but that he had become a dishonest practitioner of the game of obtaining oil wells, and in course of time to become one of the principal oil well owners in Galicia. It was stated in the Reichstag, at Vienna, that he had acquired his wealth by perjury, lying, and ruining the property of many families; and that it was owing to him that the price of petroleum had been raised to such an extent as to weigh heavily upon the state, and to the detriment of the people.

Dreyfus disposed of his oil wells, and fell to an English syndicate. He has made no attempt to reply to these charges, but immediately resigned from the Reichstag, which made no attempt to defend or to whitewash him. (Copyright, 1914, by the Brentwood Company.)

"TWOULD BE SWEET TO DIE"

Thought This Lady, While Undergoing Frightful Experience, Here Told First Time.

Linn, W. Va.—"There is no doubt but that my life was saved by the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic," says Mrs. Abbie Shackelford, of this town. "Before using Cardui I was very bad off—would have nervous and shaking spells through my entire body, terrible sick headaches, and would find myself gasping for breath. I often thought during those trying times that it would be sweet to die."

I took many different medicines and treatments, but they did me no good. I got weaker and weaker every day. Finally, I decided to try Cardui and got two bottles. I was certainly greatly surprised to note the quick change for the better after taking only one-third of the first bottle. The shaky spells and sick headaches have entirely disappeared. Can now walk one mile to church and back, and not feel tired."

Cardui also proved a blessing to my oldest daughter. Every one thought she had appendicitis, on account of a bad pain in her side, but Cardui brought her back to good health."

I will never be without Cardui in the house."

Cardui will surely do for you what it has done for so many thousands of other women. It will help you.

owned octogenarian scholar, "What is heaven?"

Finally three questions were propounded:

If Confucian worship is introduced in the schools, how can scholars of other religions maintain equal standing?

Is sacrifice to Confucius equivalent to sacrifice to heaven?

These questions provoked such acrimonious debate that the government secretary was forced to intervene with the announcement that the government had already recognized the necessity of re-establishing Confucianism, as well as heaven worship.

Some delegates insisted that symptoms of moral decay were noticeable in the past two years, since the abandonment of the ancient rites and customs.

WIDELY KNOWN HORSEMAN TAKES LIFE WITH PISTOL

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Front Royal, Va., January 16.—James D. Hall, Jr., of Grassland, a few miles from this town, committed suicide with a pistol yesterday at his home. Mr. Hall was one of the best known horsemen in this section of the country, and had a reputation as being one of the leading dealers and breeders of steeplechase and jumping horses.

For years his colors were shown at all of the leading steeplechase courses in the North and East. Mr. Hall is survived by his wife and one brother.

Remarkable Christmas Present

Among the curious Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making.

Way last January the present was decided upon, and a friend of the present gentleman requested the Burrelle Press Clipping Bureau, of New York, to watch every paper in America and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this special man.

The history ends just after election, and the 26,421 newspaper item cards include everything, from a three-line editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on 3,200 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes.

At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been put in with a book typewriter. The words thus indicated amount to 152,252.

In actual time, a very strict record of which has been kept, the work has required sixty-four working days throughout the year, and has kept in employment during that time thirty people as readers, editors, sorters, mounters and binders. Every newspaper of importance is represented.

This is merely a specimen of some of the unique orders which get into the Burrelle Bureau, to such an extent, that the clipping bureau people, which clipperings are used by individuals and by business concerns seems to be remarkable.

There are many people in private as well as in public life who need press clippings and don't know it. It might be well for them to look up this man Burrelle, who is said to be so well known that a letter simply addressed "Burrelle, New York," will reach him with no delay. (Advertisement.)

SEEK RESTORATION OF CONFUCIANISM

Authorities Gravely Quoted in Chinese Assembly Urging Its Re-Establishment.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.] Peking, January 16.—As a result of the debate in the administrative assembly, it is taken for granted that Confucianism will be restored as the state religion of China as before 1911.
